Michael Crumplin
presents
Losing Sight of the Glory - Six centuries of Combat Surgery

Mont-St-Jean – the British field hospital at Waterloo

Michael KH Crumplin is a retired consultant surgeon with a serious interest in military medical history. During his career, he was Chairman of the Court of Examiners of the Royal College of Surgeons of England, he served on the council of the College and was elected an honorary fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh. He is a Fellow of the Royal Historical Society.

After studying the history of surgery for over 45 years, he devotes time to writing, lecturing and supporting students, research workers and the media. His principal purpose is to promote interest in the human cost of war.

He is an honorary curator and archivist at the Royal College of Surgeons and has headed up the educational strategy of the Waterloo Committee for the bicentenary of the Battle of Waterloo. He has created a unique surgical museum at the battle site of Waterloo. He is also a trustee for a major new education project, the Age of Revolution https://ageofrevolution.org
